

OVERVIEW: The Medical Lessons Learned (MLL) program

The Naval Operational Medicine Institute (NOMI), Pensacola developed the Medical Lessons Learned (MLL) program to provide a way to collect medical lessons learned data tailored to the way Navy and Marine Corps operational medical support personnel think. A PowerPoint briefing covering all of the details about the process and the program is included on the CD (and on the website <http://www.nomi.med.navy.mil/>). There are also detailed instructions on how to install the program on any Windows 2000 laptop computer. Using the MLL program you will be able to export your MLL reports in the NLLS, MCLLS, and JLLS formats. You will also be able to export your MLL episodes into the MLL SOAP format. When authorized by your chain of command, you can upload your MLL episodes in the MLL SOAP format into the MLL database at NOMI. There will be both NIPRNET and SIPRNET websites available depending upon the classification of your MLL episodes. Support for the MLL program is available from NOMI. If you need support on the MLL SOAP method or anything to do with Operational Medicine aspects of the program you may contact any of the following NOMI personnel:
